World Cup fever heats up Bethel business

Thanks to fax machines and overnight shipping, local companies can compete internationally.

ERIC PAUL

By WENDY HANSCOM

Italy may have come up short in the final World Cup soccer match Sunday, but the team was a big winner for Groan & McGurn of Bethel.

The local T-shirt company has printed between 5,000 and 6,000 shirts for the Italian shoe company D'iadora, which sponsors Azzuri, the Italian soccer team.

Friday, before the final game had been played, Groan & McGurn workers were printing 600 T-shirts declaring Italy as four-time winners of the World Cup.

It didn't turn out that way of course. On Sunday Brazil became the first team ever to take four World Cup titles, beating Italy 3-2 with a penalty kick tiebreaker.

But the shirts made by Groan & McGurn had already been shipped out, and the company will get paid for them, according to owner Eric Paul of Woodstock.

Also on Friday, another order came in for 2,000 different shirts. T-shirts with the D'iadora and Azzuri logos on the front, and Roberto Baggio's name on the back were printed that day. They will be sold to soccer fans all over the U.S., at stadiums and in sporting goods stores.

An Italian victory might have meant even more business, but Groan & McGurn has established a solid relationship with D'iadora and more work is sure to follow, according to Paul.

D'iadora has already committed to another 12,000 or so T-shirts for catalog sales.

Groan & McGurn got the World Cup-connected contract through a Massachusetts company, and it's not the only national contract the T-shirt makers have.

Paul's company prints Co-Ed Naked sport T-shirts. It is also printing shirts with the images of some of baseball's great players like Babe Ruth and Ty Cobb. Those shirts will be sold to U.S. baseball fans.

Groan & McGurn prints about 60,000 shirts a week. Overnight shipping and fax machines have helped it compete in the national and international market, Paul said.

"We do a good job and most of the people we work with are willing to share their good contacts. The word gets spread around," Paul said. "We get an order on the fax machine; the shirts are shipped in the next morning; we print them, and by late afternoon they're on their way all over the U.S. We've made what's available work for us."

Groan & McGurn moved to the former GAMM building two years ago.

Paul said it's unlikely his company, which grew from 15 workers two years ago to about 45 now, will outgrow Bethel.

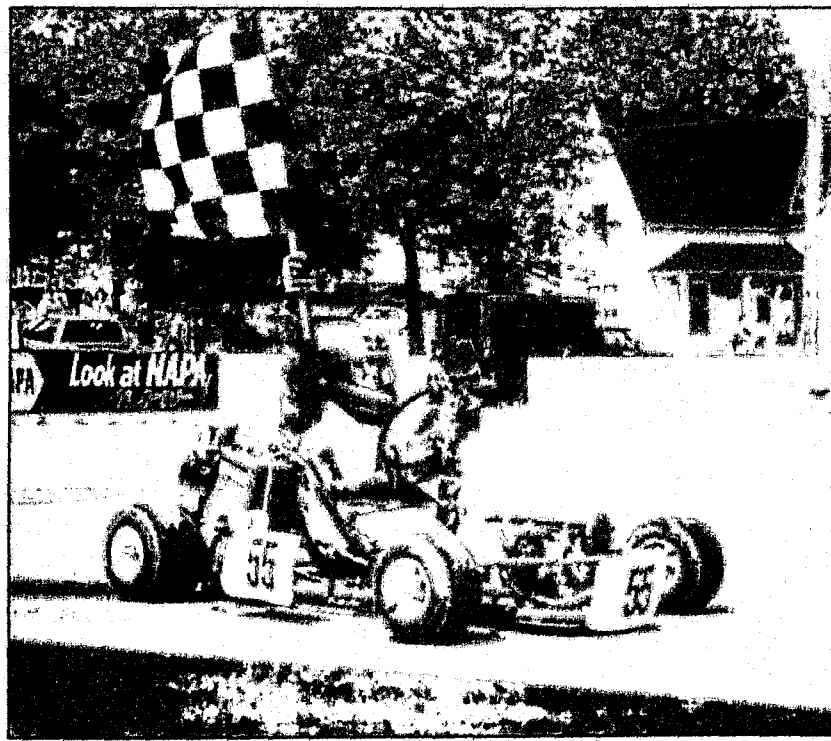

"We're not a huge metropolis, but

Local accidents injure several

By WENDY HANSCOM

Local police handled two bicycle, a motorcycle and at least two car accidents last week -- all with injuries.

Bethel resident Will Graham was still in Stephens Memorial Hospital Tuesday, following a hit-and-run accident Friday evening in Albany.

Graham was bicycling on Vernon Street when a vehicle came up behind him and struck him in the left leg, knocking him down and into a ditch, according to Oxford County Sheriff's deputy Bruce Korhonen.

Graham's thigh was badly bruised and his lower leg was extensively damaged, Korhonen said. He was listed in stable condition Tuesday, according to a SMH spokesman.

The vehicle that hit Graham did

Bethel Station rolling toward decision time

There is light at the end of the regulatory tunnel for the $25 million Bethel Station project, but the deal is not yet done, and this week finds action going on on a number of fronts. Here's where things stood as of Tuesday.

Town garage will go to industrial park

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Board of Selectmen voted 3-2 Monday to have the Bethel Station developers construct the new municipal garage and salt/sand shed at the Airport Industrial Park.

The split vote followed months of discussion regarding possible alternative sites -- and it may be challenged by opponents of the industrial park site.

The Cross Street Advisory Committee, which the selectmen called on to help with the decision, ended up similarly split -- with half the committee recommending the industrial park site and half holding out for a site elsewhere.

The industrial-park site was the leading candidate ever since the land-for-buildings swap was proposed, but even before the Town Meeting vote approving the swap, objections had been raised to the site and the selectmen had promised to consider any possible alternatives.

Objections to the site included its distance from the center of town and, more seriously, the fact that using one or more lots at the site would preclude the possibility of eventual job-creating industrial development there. The town also stands to lose any income it might have received if the land had been sold to a private business.

But supporters of the site argued that the town already owned it (and would not have to go to voters to get money to purchase another parcel), and that the site already had DEP approval for locating a facility such as a municipal garage.

The Cross Street committee and the selectmen looked at least a dozen alternative sites, at prices ranging steeply upwards from $35,000. (The discussions were held in secret sessions, justified by the argument that they involved negotiating positions.)

The $35,000 parcel, a 5.9 acre lot on Route 5 (Lovers' Lane) belonging to Brad and Judy Barker,

Hooke offers a deal on appeal

Kathy Hooke has offered the Bethel Station developers a deal: you drop your hotel (for now at least), and I'll drop my appeal.

But she's getting no takers.

"We have no intention of modifying the project to suit the needs of a single individual," said Les Otten. Hooke's offer was relayed to the developers Thursday by town planning assistant Nancy Schlieper.

Hooke said later that the offer was not intended to permanently stop the hotel. "Not in that discussion," she said, but she hoped to remove the footprint of the hotel from the plans currently being reviewed by the Planning Board, "until there is more information out there."

"There's just so much confusion," she said.

Hooke is appealing the Bethel Planning Board's finding that the site plan application for the project is "conditionally complete." Her appeal is scheduled to be heard Thursday at 7 p.m.

She said Monday that she is pressing ahead with the appeal.

Will some board members be disqualified?

"Knock, knock"

"Who's there?"

"O.J."

"O.J., who?"

"You're on the jury."

It's hard to find someone without an opinion -- but a Maine Municipal Association attorney is recommending that Kathy Hooke's appeal not be voted on by anyone who has already made public his or her opinions of the Bethel Station project.

MMA attorney Becky Seel has recommended that Leland "Mike" Brown, Wende Gray and Harry Faulkner offer to step down from the board for this appeal, on the grounds of possible conflict of interest. Brown and Gray were members of the Cross Street

Station ownership far from settled

The Town of Bethel is a long way from owning a train station, despite the impression that many people received from last week's public hearing on the project.

Severin Beliveau, an attorney representing the developers, told the audience last week that "the town will own the train station."

Town Manager Madeleine Henley rose quickly to point out that a Town Meeting must first approve such an arrangement, but her comments made such a meeting seem a mere formality.

In fact, however, the town selectmen have not even voted on the idea of the town owning the train station, nor on calling a Town Meeting for that purpose, nor on what recommendation, if any, they would make if such a meeting were to be called.

Selectman Bob Chadbourne, speaking after the meeting, said he was "astounded" that the town ownership of the train station was being presented as a nearly done deal.

The selectmen discussed the idea last month (Citizen, June 8) and again at their regular meeting last week, but no vote of any sort has been taken on such a move, and the only action taken has been to authorize Town Manager Madeleine Henley to write to the Maine Department of Transportation about funding for such an option.

The idea of having the town own the train station (and then lease it to the developers) was first raised by representatives of state and federal funding agencies, Henley said.

They suggested that far more grant money would be available for a publicly owned station than for a station that was commercially owned.

The selectmen were initially lukewarm to the idea -- their largest reservation being possible town liability if the project were to fail.

None of the selectmen spoke up at last week's pub-

Water problems evaporating

Bethel Station developers and the Bethel Water District appear to be near agreement on how the project will get its water and who will pay to get it there.

Lack of an agreement on water supply -- especially water for firefighting -- is one of the outstanding issues in the project's site plan review.

But following a meeting with the developers Monday morning, Water District Trustee John Head said, "We had an excellent meeting and I believe all the problems for the foreseeable future have been resolved -- with one of the principals there, a lot of problems became nonproblems."

Head declined to reveal the terms of the tentative agreement until both sides have been able to review a memorandum of understanding drafted after the meeting.

"We want to be sure we all heard the same thing," he said, but he noted that the agreement covered potable and firefighting water for the complete Phase One of the project, including the hotel that is now slated for construction next year.

Head said the district's Board of Trustees is expected to meet next week to ratify the agreement.

The drill-your-own option

Negotiations with the Bethel Water District were not the only water-supply option the developers had on tap -- a water-drilling truck was on the project site last week probing for water.

Henie Merrill said the initial test was inconclusive, and he denied "absolutely" that the presence of the drilling-truck was an attempt to pressure the Water District into agreement.

There is a substantial aquifer under the project site, and if Bethel Station were to supply its water needs from that source, the Bethel Water District would stand to lose hundreds of thousands of dollars in possible federal infrastructure aid -- money that is badly needed to increase firefighting capacity throughout the town.

GO FOR QUALITY, NEWRY

To the Editor:

I wish to make a few comments about the article concerning Newry's withdrawal from SAD44.

I find it interesting that money is considered an issue for staying in the district when at budget time (as the expected yearly increase is debated) the voters are told, "How can you put a price on your children's education?"

Now someone says Newry's withdrawal will hurt the other children. I doubt the other children will be hurt, but the wallets of taxpayers in the rest of the district will be tapped more than normal.

The question for Newry parents should be very simple. "Do you want a very good elementary education for your children (possibly top in the state) or do you want average as they will presently get?"

I heartily disagree with Mr. Jenkins when he says, "I think it will be difficult for a one or two room schoolhouse to provide the opportunities CPS will provide."

The class sizes in the Newry school will be smaller, therefore more attention can be paid to individual needs. Past administrations have supported hiring new teachers and aides by saying they need to decrease class size to improve education.

Children schooled at home, in studies I have read, seem to get a better education than the average child in public school. Children in small private schools do better than children in large public schools.

Our president and his wife feel a private school will give their child a proper education. I assume they expect a better education to warrant paying the money.

It is not selfish to want the best for your child, it is normal parental behavior.

It does not seem like good parenting to me to put your children in a large student body with a teacher student ratio of 1 to 15-18 approximately when they could have a 1 to 10 or maybe 1 to 5, just to be politically correct and hurt no one's feelings.

Another advantage is all your tax dollars would be going to your own children and with a small school more would go directly to teaching.

It is a fact that the administrative costs of SAD44 are above the state average, while teacher's salaries are average. Shouldn't that be the other way around if you are looking for the best education for your children?

Large school districts were formed years back because there weren't enough children in the smaller towns to warrant operating a school. Times have changed and more people are living in small towns and can support these small schools.

It seems to me if someone is truly concerned with their child's education then taking one quarter of the district's funding and putting it toward their own school is the only logical step.

A final note. If average is good, why are Harvard and Yale the most commonly known colleges and why are parents so proud when their children are accepted there?

LEAVING WITH A NEW VISION

To the Editor:

A few weeks ago I arrive in Bethel with 12 children and three chaperones. The children came from two backgrounds in Northern Ireland. Some were Catholics and some Protestant. Most of us live in, and around Newry.

Newry was established 850 years ago and the town grew up around an Abbey, founded by Cistercian Monks. The foundations of the original Abbey can still be seen today.

The group of children were brought together in a cross-community contact scheme in the hope of overcoming some of our religious divisions. We brought them to this area as it has historical links with our own home town.

The hospitality shown to us far surpassed our expectations and created for us an immediate atmosphere which bonded everyone together.

Our American host families looked after our children as they would their own and produced a warmth in their hearts that they will remember for the rest of their lives.

The outlook on life that they were shown here will hopefully give our young people a new vision that they will remember when they return to Ireland.

We are thrilled that we have created this link between our two countries and in turn we hope that the people of America will also see the Irish nation in a new light -- a way that is not often shown in the media.

In conclusion, I would like to thank everyone who made this exchange possible and believe that it will grow in strength in years to come.

'UNCLE SAM'S' TROOPS GLORIOUS

To the Editor:

To the gals and guys of "Uncle Sam Presents" -- You did great! If King George III was here today, he would have awarded you all with the Victoria Cross for gallantry, if the VC had been invented in his time, for the skill and courage you all showed in front of a live audience. Hey, we had a second largest audience of the weekend, only the fireworks watchers made up a larger crowd.

Thanks, in order of their appearance, to Brian Stickland and Keith Ryerson, the Red Coats; Andy Dennis, Uncle Sam; Kate Nickerson, Yankee Doodle; Jennifer Bowie, Thomas Jefferson; Martha Grover, Betsy Ross; Joe Taylor, Jerry Greenwell, Craig Ryerson and Andy Bartlett, the Spirit of '76; Jonathan Smith singing "Happy Birthday America" and Dot Walker singing "America The Beautiful" and "God Bless America"; as well as Ed Hitchcock, the voice of Uncle Sam.

What you heard if you were at the common on Saturday evening came from the work of Jonathan Smith and Tom Remington, Thanks guys for your early and continuing help.

Our show got a tremendous boost from a trolley named "Willy" driven by Harry Richards and donated for the event by Sunday River. The trolley made a perfect backstage and a novel, after-the-show attraction for kids in the audience who wanted to tour "Willy" from the inside. So a big thanks to Les Otten, Chip Seamans and Harry Richards. With sincerest thanks and appreciation to all,

Don and Kathy Bennett

FAIR FOR ONE, FAIR FOR ALL--Parking spaces during Saturday's Mollycodd Day festivities were at a premium, but that didn't stop Bethel Police reserve officer Stan Moore of Newry from ticketing cars parked in the wrong zone on Church Street. "It's a no-parking zone," said Bethel Police Chief Dale Bellman. "People complain and we ticket, even during funerals. If we let one incident go and not another, people say we're being unfair. So, we tag them no matter what ... period." (Photo by Michael Daniels)

ECONOMIC PROJECT WRAP-UP

To the Editor:

As my role as the Evans Notch Economic Project consultant draws to an end, I'd like to take this opportunity to outline the project's achievements, announce an important public meeting on the morning of Wednesday, July 27 and thank all of the residents of the region for helping make the project a successful beginning to regional economic development and diversification efforts. The ultimate goal of the project is the creation of cooperative economic development ventures that utilize the many talents of area residents and organizations to create a strong and diverse economy. In order to realize this goal, the project needed to address key issues and take many first steps. The Project Advisory Committee and I worked to address many issues and we laid the groundwork for many first steps.

Our locally controlled and developed project knows that the solutions to regional economic questions exist within the community. There is enough talent and energy right here to overcome the problems and move toward a desirable economic future. An exchange of ideas among local business leaders, municipal officials, civic and social organizations, educators and concerned residents needs to occur.

We began by collecting information about the regional economy, and I drafted an economic study in March of 1994. The Evans Notch Economic Base-Line Report outlines the major industrial shifts occurring in the region and compares these shifts to changes occurring in other regions. The report represents a place to begin discussing the local economy. We distributed over 175 copies to area residents and organizations in March, and in April, members of the project's advisory committee and I traveled to share our findings and listen to the ideas and concerns of the region's diverse population. We discussed topics and exchanged ideas and a few common problems became clear. Two major topics identified were Maine's Worker's Compensation System and Business Financing. These central issues required detailed discussion.

In May, the project sponsored a workshop to discuss Maine's Worker's Compensation System. Representatives from the Maine Board of Worker's Compensation, Maine Employers Mutual Corporation, the Dunlap Insurance Agency, Bethel Furniture Stock, Sunday River Skiway Corporation and three State Representatives traveled to Bethel to share their insight and listen to the concerns of area business people. Discussion covered the history of the system, the impact of 1992 reforms, how to affect future reforms, as well as program options to lower worker's comp rates. Attendees left knowing that although the cost of Worker's Compensation in Maine is still a real problem, recent reforms are gradually improving the system and there are options available to help ease the burden.

In June, the project sponsored a workshop on business financing. Representatives from Key Bank, Fleet Bank, Bethel Savings Bank, the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE), Community Concepts, and the Androscoggin Valley Council of Governments (AVCOG) sat on a panel to outline the various programs and options available for business start-ups and expansions. The information lending institutions need to have and what support businesses can receive in putting this information together started the discussion. Each organization then outlined the programs they offer and explained how they locate programs best suited for each situation, even when that means referring businesses to other organizations. The tight lending practices of recent years are ending, there are a myriad of institutions and programs available to fit nearly every business need and lending institutions realize their success depends on a healthy business climate. These are just some of the strong messages that emerged from this enthusiastic panel.

With a snapshot of the local economy in hand and two major business issues addressed, the project is moving toward streamlining business assistance efforts in the region. I will develop two important tools by the end of this month, a local business data-base and a business relocation packet. I will distribute these tools to civic organizations, regional town offices and business assistance organizations. These tools will help in later efforts to market the area as a great place to live and conduct business and help centralize important information many area businesses need to make sound decisions. These are merely tools, however, and the region must begin examining how best to organize around the common goal of creating a diverse and robust economy.

To help start this process, the project is conducting two final public workshops. The first, introduced this morning (Wednesday, July 20) at the Sudbury Inn, is a program inviting existing organizations to join forces and work cooperatively on identifying the needs of area businesses. The Business Visitation Program provides a sound format for business leaders and organizations to work with; a format allowing each group to focus on its business specialty. The Maine Department of Economic and Community Development (DECD) provides support for the program, but local residents develop and direct every aspect. I invite everyone to find out more about this important first step and assist the local people who are working to lay the groundwork for real assistance that will ultimately benefit the entire region.

The final public workshop will be held on the morning of Wednesday, July 27 at 8 a.m., also at the Sudbury Inn on Main Street in Bethel. This workshop will feature guest speaker Stephen A. Heavener, the executive director for the Lewiston-Auburn Economic Growth Council. He will explain how the Twin Cities of Lewiston and Auburn responded to drastic economic changes that saw the erosion of its traditional industries, the rise of new business venture and, most recently, tough economic times. The model he outlines deserves serious consideration because it allows many diverse organizations to combine efforts in many areas while each organization maintains its independence. The combined resources create a powerful business assistance and marketing force. The most visible program the council undertakes is the promotional advertising campaign known as "The Cities of the Androscoggin -- Lewiston-Auburn." This campaign celebrates business success stories and features business assistance programs. Most people are aware of the catchy jingle, and it has been effective in attracting business inquiries about the area.

The growth council took years to develop. Development groups crossed many bridges, the process was not easy and it is not yet complete. Problems still exist, but no one denies that the degree of cooperation achieved has created an important business assistance affiliation. Mr. Heavener will outline where the process began, how the council evolved, its current structure, what roles it plays in development efforts and what roles it foresees for itself in the future. I invite all people interested in thinking about new approaches to economic development to attend this final workshop. It should help continue the process the Evans Notch Project has worked to begin.

Again, thank you for all of the assistance you provided over the past 11 months. The time is right for these efforts. There is a strong community here and I encourage all people who want to continue enjoying life in this special place and who want their children to have the same or better opportunity to enjoy the region to come to the final workshop, listen to some new ideas and take part in shaping the Evans Notch Regional Economy of the future.

If you would like to attend the free breakfast workshop next week or would like information about The Evans Notch Economic Project, please contact the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce at 824-2282.

PLENTY TO DO ON THE FOURTH

To the Editor:

The Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce was pleased to organize the Fifth Annual Bethel Art Fair in conjunction with our new Fourth of July Festival. It was great to see so many local folks participating in the many events planned from Friday evening through Monday afternoon. For many years, local residents have had to leave the area in order to find something "to do" during the Fourth of July weekend and it is our intention to change this behavior pattern.

The success of the event is a tribute to the cooperation of many people, businesses and organizations. They are too numerous to name here, but I do want to thank the committee members: George Driscoll and John Devito, Sunday River Ski Resort, Susan Driscoll, Bethel Savings Bank, Allen Connors and Kristina Villalre, Bethel Inn and Country Club, Don and Kathy Bennett (and all the helpers that made Uncle Sam Presents possible), Tom McGinniss, Rene McGrew, Bethel Frame Shop, Gail Giarusso, Vicky Rackliffe (Mahosuc Arts), and the chief volunteer, Lois Ruff. We welcome new committee members with new energy and ideas to call the chamber office if you would like to be a part of the planning for next year's event.

And to all who supported this event or helped in any way, thank you on behalf of the entire community.

Robin Zinchuk, Executive Director
Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

THIS WEEK AT THE

Moses Mason House

There was a steady flow of people through the Dr. Moses Mason House on Mollycodd Day. Guides for the day were Margaret Joy Tibbetts, Judy Haskell, Lorrie Hoch, and Millie Thomas. Mildred Jackson of the society staff operated the museum store. Many thanks go to all of the above and to Tim and Joanne Korhonen and family for all their help in making the society's float possible. The float won third prize in the parade. Special thanks also are in order to Barbara Herrick Brown for providing the attractive flower arrangements.

Mrs. Brown has been faithfully providing special flower arrangements for the Dr. Moses Mason House since it opened in 1974. She has indicated that she would like to retire from this duty after 20 years or at least share this responsibility with someone else. Anyone wishing to volunteer is encouraged to call the society office, 824-2908.

Another issue of the society quarterly, "The Bethel Citizen," is being readied for publication. This issue will celebrate the Dr. Moses Mason House which became the society's headquarters 20 years ago this year. Anyone wishing a complimentary copy is encouraged to call the society office or write P.O. Box 12, Bethel, Me., 04217.

Attitash expands onto Bear Peak

BARTLETT, N.H.--Attitash ski area hopes to open three new trails this winter. Expansion on Bear Peak will provide low to high intermediate skiing terrain. The trails will cover 35 acres, creating two and one-half miles of skiing. Expansion will also include the addition of one fixed-grip quad chairlift. The trails' grand opening should be in late November or mid-December, according to Attitash and LBO Holding, Inc. officials.

Oxford man killed in helicopter crash

OXFORD--Chief Aviation Survivalman Peter A. Leeman, 34, was killed July 12 in a helicopter crash in California. He joined the Coast Guard when he was 17, just after his 1977 graduation from Oxford Hills High School. His widow Darlene Hanscom Leeman is a Greenwood native.

Canadian faces charges in fatal crash

SHELBURNE, N.H.--A Canadian woman was arrested and charged with negligent homicide last week after the death of Rejean Lessard, 38, of Val Cagne, Ontario, who was killed instantly when she was thrown from a motorcycle on Route 2 in Shelburne, N.H. Ruth Clarke 46, of North York, Ontario was arrested last week by New Hampshire State Police. Police say Clarke crossed the highway divider before the accident occurred. Francoise Lambert, 31, was the motorcycle driver. He was also thrown from the bike, treated for leg injuries and transferred to a Quebec hospital. Clarke was released on $20,000 personal recognizance bond and is scheduled to appear in Gorham District Court on Aug. 9. The state plans to seek an indictment against Clarke on the charge from the Coos County grand jury later this month.

OHHS merger OK'd by state board

AUGUSTA--The state Board of Education last week approved the merger of Oxford Hills High School and Oxford Hills Technical School into a comprehensive high school, which will provide both academic and vocational training. The merger was requested because of overcrowding at OHHS and the lack of a permanent home for the vocational program, which is now in leased space. A $29 million addition to the OHHS is planned, with the state picking up $27 million of it. The next step is a SAD17 referendum vote scheduled for September. The project proposal by-passed the usual state-approval process, which puts proposed school projects on a rated approval list. The state board OK'd this project without consideration of the rated list. Critics of the project have claimed the state board's approval is unfair and takes money away from five dozen or so other school projects that are on the list and competing for state money.

Planning board chair resigns

ANDOVER--Planning Board chairman Marshall Meisner resigned last week effective immediately. The board is seeking another Planning Board member. At the board's July 7 meeting, only one board member was present and the meeting was canceled.

Loaf's expansion questioned

CARRABASSETT VALLEY--Environmentalists are worried that expansion at Sugarloaf/JSA with have a negative environmental impact. The concerns are loosely based on environmentalists' claims that S-K-I Ltd., which recently acquired controlling interest in Sugarloaf, has a bad environmental record in at Killington ski area. According to Vermont's State Assistant Attorney Chris Kilian, S-K-I and Killington have faced lawsuits over possible expansions into bear habitat, sewage disposal in potentially fragile soils and heavy use of area stream systems for snow-making. Sugarloaf officials say they do not think that planned expansion at the resort will result in a serious challenge from environmentalists.

Crab louse closes state building

AUGUSTA--A startled state employee found a crab louse on a toilet seat last week in a building that houses a branch of the Department of Human Services. State officials said they don't know where the louse came from. The building's 75 employees were sent home early so cleaning crews could scrub the building's restrooms. The crab louse is light brown, about the size of a pinhead and usually lives in body hair.

Outward Bound gets $15,000 grant

ROCKLAND--The Hurricane Island Outward Bound School recently received a $15,000 grant to help the New Haven Connecticut Department of Police Services implement community-based policing. New Haven police officers and youths will participate in a 14-day Outward Bound course at the school's Newbury base. Over the past two years, the school has led community-building initiatives in the New Haven communities of Fair haven and Brookside, as well as a five-day wilderness Outward Bound course for police officers, youths and community members in Maine.

State recycling goals not met

AUGUSTA--The state wants cities and towns to recycle 35 percent of their trash or face possible fines, but Maine Waste Management estimates that 412 cities and towns in the state are not meeting that goal. Maine Waste Management would like to fine towns that don't meet the goal $1.50 on each ton of solid waste starting in January. But state Office of Waste Reduction officials say they are more interested in helping towns meet the recycling goal then penalizing them. The agency said it will waive the fine for any municipality that develops a plan to upgrade its recycling program.

From the Bethel Police log: Bike, wood stolen; two OUI arrests

Tuesday, July 12, an Elm Street woman reported that her son's bike had been stolen from the family garage. It was described as a 26-inch, blue bike.

Monday, July 18, a P.H. Chadbourne employee reported that one-half to one cord of wood had been stolen off one of the company's Bethel woodlots.

In other police news last week, on Monday, July 18, a juvenile told police she had been hit by her mother. The Department of Human Services was contacted. The report said the mother may be charged with assault.

On Wednesday, July 13, an employee of Tri-County Mental Health reported a patient had brought weapon into the Route 26 building. By the time police arrived the employee had named the person, who was placed in protective custody and transported to St. Mary's.

On July 12, police responded to a barking dog complaint on the Grover Hill Road.

On July 11, a caller reported a car blocking traffic on the Route 2 off ramp. The car was out of gas.

Police also made three arrests last week.

On July 15, police stopped a motorist for traveling 50 mph in a 35 mph zone. After smelling alcohol on the man's breath, police administered field sobriety tests to the driver. Jeffrey G. Healey, 27, of Bethel was arrested and charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of an intoxicant.

On July 16, police pulled over a motorist for failing to stop at a stop sign. The man appeared intoxicated and failed field sobriety tests. Stephen Boyce, 35, of Oxford was arrested and charged with OUI.

Also on July 16, Charles S. Jaros, 28, of Nashua, N.H. was arrested by Bethel police on an outstanding warrant.

There were also a number of accidents last week -- see story beginning on page one.

now with overnight shipping, it doesn't matter where you are," he said. The company has about 60 regular customers, he said, and 20 steady contracts.

"We stagnated for a while (when the company first moved to the Northwest Bethel Road)," Paul said, "then we perked up and started hitting some of the projections I made to get the place. We haven't even started to tap the market. There's so much work out there. We've got room to expand for about another year."

If the T-shirt makers start to out-grow their present building, there's still some manufacturing space available at Groan & McGurn's former site in West Bethel, Paul said. Paul would also like to expand its his local business, he said.

"We want to use local artists and produce our own designs," Paul said. "That's how we got started. There's more money in it."

Groan & McGurn leases its building from the Town of Bethel. Paul said he hopes to purchase the building before his lease is up in January.

Accidents

not stop, Korhonen said. The accident is still under investigation, he said, but police have a description of the car from witnesses, evidence from the scene and expect an arrest by the end of the month.

"The cause of the accident was excessive speed," Korhonen said. "The driver couldn't control the car. Graham was riding as far left as possible. He was wearing a helmet and gloves which helped prevent further injuries. The car was going very fast and just clipped him and the bike's left pedal. If he'd have hit (Graham) straight on it would have killed him. The bike was hit so hard it also blew the front tire off."

Another bicyclist was injured Sunday when his front tire caught in a patch of uneven pavement, spilling the driver onto the road.

Dave Langley of Windham suffered a possible concussion, a shoulder injury and multiple abrasions, according to Bethel Police. Langley was also wearing a helmet. He was transported to SMH for treatment and released, police said.

Damage to the bike was estimated at $200.

On Wednesday, July 13, a Bryant Pond man was hurt in a motorcycle accident in Woodstock.

Alan D. Pollard, 43, failed to negotiate a curve on the Concord Pond Road causing his 1977 BMW motorcycle to slide off a small bridge into a stream.

He walked to a nearby camp for help. Pollard was taken to SMH treatment then transferred to Central Maine Medical Center. Pollard suffered facial lacerations and fractures. He was not wearing a helmet. He was listed Monday in fair condition. The motorcycle was totaled.

Later Friday morning, three people received minor injuries when two cars collided on Route 2 near the Newry-Bethel town line.

A car operated by Barbara Curtis, 48, of Taunton, Mass. heading west on Route 2 attempted a U-turn and collided with a vehicle operated by Rachel Scott, 24, of Dixfield. The Scott vehicle was struck on the passenger side and landed in the westbound ditch, according to Bethel police.

Both drivers and David Buck, 26, a passenger in the Scott vehicle, were treated at the scene for bumps and bruises.

Damage to Curtis' 1994 Toyota was estimated at $1,000. Scott's 1990 Toyota was a total loss, police said.

On Saturday morning, a tractor-trailer truck driven by William Fortin, 29, of Gorham, N.H. collided with a vehicle driven by Harold Schwartz, 57, of Jamesville, N.Y.

Schwartz was attempting a left turn off the Railroad Street extension and didn't see the tractor-trailer coming, according to Bethel police. Upon impact, Schwartz's vehicle spun clockwise in the road 180 degrees, police said.

Bethel Emergency Ambulance Rescue Service transported Schwartz to SMH, where he was treated for bumps and bruises and released, according to police.

was the final choice of the Cross Street committee members if the industrial park site were not to be chosen.

Another finalist was a portion of P.H. Chadbourne Company land behind the wastewater treatment plant. Company owner (and selectman) Bob Chadbourne had offered to donate the parcel to the town.

But at Monday's selectmen's meeting town code enforcement officer Norm Putnam told the board that shoreland zoning restrictions put much of that site off limits to a municipal facility.

With the developers pressing hard for a decision, the selectmen finally ended up back where they began. Board members Dutch Dresser, Art Gilbert and John Thurston voted for Lot 4 at the industrial park site, Bob Chadbourne and Rick Whitney opposed it.

Following the vote, Chadbourne suggested that since the industrial park had been selected, a second lot should also be set aside to accommodate snow storage.

Developer Heinie Merrill, who had said last week that he was "very concerned" by the board's delay in reaching a siting decision, thanked the selectmen Monday.

However Putnam and John Head vehemently protested the vote, largely because the industrial park site had been explicitly designated for industrial or manufacturing operations.

Following the vote to approve the site, Head, who has been involved actively in airport affairs since 1977, told the selectmen that their action may have been illegal, given the covenants on the lots and the terms of the airport master plan approved by voters.

Head said later that he didn't plan to challenge the vote legally, but he thought others might.

The board Monday also approved construction plans for the new garage (but not the salt/sand shed). Merrill said he is now ready to present the Planning Board with the site plan applications for the garage and for the recycling center, which is being relocated to the wastewater treatment plant site.

The selectmen have yet to decide where to relocate the ambulance barn. They are currently reviewing sites at the Bethel Area Health Center and behind the fire station on the common.

Appeal

Advisory Committee, which produced a favorable report on the project, and Faulkner has been an outspoken supporter of it. Brown is also a project abutter.

According to the town's Appeals Board ordinance, at the beginning of a hearing, board members with any connection to the project must disclose it.

Following any such disclosures, the remaining board members would vote whether the involvement constituted grounds for disqualification.

Two of the three members identified by Seel indicated that they didn't believe they should be disqualified.

Gray told The Citizen that she thought she was impartial. But she said that on Thursday she would explain her involvement with the Cross Street committee and let her fellow Appeals Board members come to their own conclusions.

Faulkner said, "I really haven't really decided. I know that I'm offended by the (recommendation), and I will be there."

Mike Brown could not be reached for comment.

In a related matter, the Bethel Board of Selectmen on Monday appointed Brown and fellow Appeals Board member Shirley Gilbert to new terms on the board, and they named Dexter Stowell and Jeri Greenwell as alternates.

Station

lic hearing, but town clerk Merton Brown supported the idea -- not so much for the grant money it would bring in as for the tax money it would keep in town.

If the town owns the station and leases it back to the developers, Bethel will receive lease income in lieu of taxes, but if another governmental body (for example, the county or state) were to own the station, the town would receive nothing.

The selectmen are not expected to discuss the station again until their Aug. 8 meeting, but the DOT will hold a hearing July 27 on both the roads in the Bethel Station project and the train station. The DOT hearing will be held at 7 p.m. in the Telstar High School auditorium.

HEAVY SUPPORT--Developer Heinie Merrill (center) brought a formidable retinue of retainers to last week public hearing on Bethel Station. Merrill's team included former Democratic gubernatorial hopeful, attorney Severin Balleau (seated behind Merrill); state Director of Economic Development Mary Fay LaFavor (not shown) and a dozen engineers, architects and consultants. Here, Harriman Associates architect Frank Churchill addresses the meeting.

Andover Selectmen hold emergency tax meeting

By BARBARA ADAMS

Andover selectmen held an emergency meeting last week to prepare two articles on tax reduction which will appear on a referendum in September. The board has canceled a scheduled Aug. 13 special Town Meeting to consider the articles, upon the advice of town attorney Curtis Webber and the Maine Municipal Association. The two articles to be voted on were suggested by former selectmen chair Wayne Delano at a recent selectmen's meeting. The articles would reduce the tax rate from an anticipated $18.6 per thousand of valuation to approximately $13 per thousand.

"Webber said this has to be done on a referendum," said selectman chair Kathy Williamson. "We will have a public hearing on Aug. 31 at the Town Hall, and the vote will be taken on Sept. 10, from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Depending on how this goes, we will do the tax commitment on Sept. 13."

A letter explaining the matter will be sent to all registered voters this week.

The large increase in taxes resulted from the town losing $140,000 in revenue from MCI Telecommunications because the company no longer can pay personal property taxes to the town due to a 1988 change in the tax laws. The firm is now required to pay excise taxes to the state instead.

The loss of this revenue would result in an increase of $3 per thousand in the tax rate. Also, the SAD44 tax 1994-1995 assessment of $534,854 would cause an increase of $2 per thousand valuation for 1994.

A vote at the last town meeting to take $50,000 from surplus for a reserve in case the town loses tax appeal cases with MCI would result in an increase of $1 per thousand valuation. The increase from the present $12 per thousand evaluation to $18.6 per thousand would increase taxes more than 50 percent.

The town is currently being re-evaluated by the state for 1995 at approximately $35 million instead of $55 million, so that a larger school subsidy can be received from the state in 1995.

The first article to be considered in September to lessen the increase would be to use the $50,000 in the MCI reserve fund for tax reduction. The second will seek to withdraw a sum yet to be determined (Delano suggested $200,000) in interest from the town's COMSAT trust fund with Key Bank to also be used for tax reduction.

Delano had noted Tuesday that approximately three-quarters of a million dollars would be left in the COMSAT account.

The board met with state tax assessor John Lafayer at the state Bureau of Taxation two weeks ago in regard to both the pending appeal cases with MCI and the personal property tax issue.

"Between The Lines"

Dear Friends,
Our children's Rocketship Playroom is such a familiar fixture to us at BOOKS-N-THINGS, we sometimes forget how unique it is. Each summer when visitors return, we see youngsters come through our door and sprint to the back of the store, shouting to parents, "It's still here!" Then they settle in to get re-acquainted with the steering wheel, control knobs and fun of pretending they're in outer space. Meanwhile, parents can shop for books in our store, knowing their little ones are happily engaged.

Our Rocketship Playroom is just one of the ways BOOKS-N-THINGS caters to kids. We have a wonderful array of books for children, from cloth books for toddlers to those scary "teen series" that are so popular. And our knowledgeable staff is happy to advise. See you soon!

The Andover Public Library invites children ages K-3 to join their Summer Reading Program, the group will enjoy stories, games and music, the hours are 9:30-11:30, July 18-29. Those intending to display a wedding gown at the library during Old Home Day should contact Carol or Grace at 392-4841 during library hours before July 28 so that the arrangement of gowns can be planned. Gowns of any style or vintage are welcome.

The library trustees, Carol and Grace would like to thank everyone who baked and donated food for the bake sale, it was a great success. Thanks to Patty Richardson for donating a Mother's Day cake to the library. Marjorie McGuire was the winner. Everyone's support is appreciated.

Eugene and Ethelene Merrill have had guests lately. Their son Kenneth, Rev and Kurt of Sitka, Alaska, and their daughter, Jeanne Marcucci of Beaverton, Wash., have been staying with them while visiting with family and friends.

Olga Dorahue of Jupiter, Fla., has been staying with her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hutchins, while in the area for a visit.

The next meeting of the Andover Fire Association will be held at the fire station on July 26 at 7 p.m.

Sympathy is extended to the McGee family for the death of George Sr. George was raised in Andover and later returned to reside in the Lake Road.

East Bethel

By NANCY MERCER

Ken Schinner told off a ladder when passing at the Hastings farm. He broke two ribs and received a concussion.

John and Ruth Bethel and their family attended the Bethel Church meeting at the church in Bethel on July 13. Mr. and Mrs. Roger Twitchell also attended.

Denise Coolidge and a friend from Old Town came home over the Fourth of July weekend.

Gertrude Hinkley and Daisy Coolidge visited Charlene Haines last week. Charlene is improving slowly.

Barbara Olson is improving slowly.

Arlene Harrington visited her sister Kay Devona in Skowhegan from July 8 to July 11.

Geneva Pelletier of Manchester, N.H., visited Mr. and Mrs. Andre Bernier from July 8 to 10.

Polly Smith was guest of honor at a surprise 80th birthday party given by her family at Jim and Donna Bernard's in Andover. All of her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren were present. Those attending were: Donna and Jim Bernard, Andover; Gary Smith and Wanda Howard, Rumford; Jackie, Jim, Katie and Tyler Thurston of Bridgton; Jeri, Nicole and Megan Manson of Norway; Julie Martin of Lewiston; Jenny Martin and Richard Jeselskis of Wiscasset; Michael Smith and Vanessa Smith of Raymond; Andrea Smith of Skowhegan; Karen Maddera of Norway and Charlie Smith of East Bethel. A fun afternoon of swimming and a barbecue, cake and ice cream were enjoyed by all.

Alder River Grange will hold a regular meeting on July 22, 7:30 p.m. at the hall.

Judith Grover Tent 17 met at the Grange Hall for a regular meeting and initiation. Joyce Guin and Beth Jones visited the meeting to help with the initiation. In the absence of some of the officers, the following filled in: Elsie Bonney as president; Sally Sawyer as senior vice president; Beatrice Farnum as chaplain; Crystal Chase as color bearer 1; Leatrice Chase 3, and Beth Jones 4; Phyllis Jordan as guard and color bearer 2. Everyone welcomed our new member Eleanor Pugliese. The national treasurer's report was received from department president Gayle Butterfield. An invitation was given to Eagle Court of Honor for James Bonney on July 31 at Telstar. Thirty calls were reported. Kathleen McAllister received her 50-year membership pin. There will be lectures on the Civil War at Augusta, starting on July 19. On Sept. 16, 17, 18 there will be the Civil War enactment in Augusta. A report of the convention was given; nine members attended. Fifteen dollars was won for writing about Minutes of Gold. Fourteen members were present.

Curator Larry Billings has been reviewing some of his books on antiques. He says there is something interesting to learn in this field. The Historical Society has a good collection of books on antiques in its museum. Visit and look them over. The society studies the people, places, and events that are all a part of Woodstock's history. At the July meeting of the society, three members of the American Legion Post of Locke Mills -- Roland Lord, Herbert Lyons and Nicholas Clements -- demonstrated folding the American flag with the meaning of each fold explained.

This was the first time this had been done in Maine. On Aug. 6 the society will hold History Day from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. There will be a flea market, refreshments for sale, and demonstrations in the museum. A few plants should be available. Rain date will be Aug. 7, 1 to 4 p.m. Thanks to all those members who have served as guides at the museum this summer. And, of course, the society thanks the visitors who have come to see the exhibits. Curator Larry Billings has given to the museum a large decorative tin which has two portraits on it.

Sunday evening, Ken and Alice Hoyt and Beatrice Farnum visited Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnson and their daughter Nancy and family from Connecticut at a cottage in Bridgton where they are vacationing.

Tuesday, at 4 p.m., on Channel IV TV is Bryant Pond hour. Mr. and Mrs. Harris Hathaway were dinner guests of their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Estes, on Sunday.

Ruth Dunham was guest of her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Erland Scribner, on Sunday. She also visited her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Roland McMillan, one day.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris Hathaway called on Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wardwell one day.

The Seventh Annual Barnett Reunion was held July 3 at the home of Bill and Sylvia Wight with about 100 people attending. Some were from Connecticut, New Hampshire, Prince Edward Island, and a lot from Maine. A potluck dinner was enjoyed at noon. In the afternoon an auction was held, and Lang Enman of Errol won the 50/50 drawing. There were games for the children, and a great time was had by all. Louis and Gloria Barnett of Rumford will host the 1995 reunion.

Nine members of the "Newry Bowling Gang" were at the Oxford Lanes, Rumford, last week: Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Gil Seeley, Louise Tetley, Doris Parent, Bea Lowell, Irene Hadfield, Sylvia Wight and Olive Anderson. Rena Powers was a guest. On the overall scores, Betsy was high on the triples, beating Gil by four pins. She was also high on the singles with one string of 111. On the "Righties," Doris was high on the triples, also high on the singles. Karlene had one spare and one strike, Betsy one spare and one strike, Gil three spares and one strike, Sylvia four spares, Doris two spares, and Bea three spares.

The Newry Church Ladies Circle met July 14 at Louise Tetley's residence. President Sylvia Wight opened the meeting and Freda Robinson read "Lord Give Me Peace." She had the roll call, read notes of the last meeting and brought the finances up to date. Sylvia reported on the health of Archie Post, who is doing very well for a 90-year-old! A reminder of the Church picnic on the 18th of August. Plans were made to have a food sale sometime in August, maybe the 12th or the 19th (more on this later). The committee will be comprised of Louise, Gil and Sylvia. The next meeting will be at Freda's on Aug. 8 at 12:30 p.m. The meeting was adjourned and cake and ice cream and coffee were enjoyed.

Three cheers for Archie Post... "I love everything that's old. Old friends... Old times... Old manners... Old books... Old authors to read... Old wine."

Three cheers for Parker Gray, son of Sylvia and Don Gray, who returned from Tignes, France recently, where he ski-trained on a glacier from June 30 to July 10. When he was not training, he spent some time playing tennis, soccer, board-sailing, mountain biking and hiking in the National Park of Vanois.

I attended the outdoor wedding of Reggie Tilley and Stacy Dean, Saturday, at Vince and Beverly Stevens' home. It was a cloudy day, but everything went as planned and the rain held off. It was a beautiful wedding. Stacy had a mid-length white gown and the attendants were in lilac and blue. I wish them a lifetime of happiness.

You always run into friends you haven't seen for a long time when you attend a wedding. One of them was Judy Lawrence Green, another was Dawn Brackett who was the photographer for the wedding. I had a nice visit along with others that were there.

Dolte Critser sent me a picture she had taken when she was here last spring of my crab apple tree when it was blossomed. It came out beautiful and was in full bloom when she was here.

Kellie Hart took her daughter Jessie to Lewiston to Dr. Matuska on Monday.

Cleo Ryerson has been on vacation recently. She works at Ledgeview Nursing Home and this is a much deserved and needed vacation.

Ellsworth Hathaway and Harry Hutchinson have been putting in some early hours at Will's Mill on Route 26. Sometimes they head out as early as 5 a.m.

Nick and Marta Clements had their two great-nephews Nicolas and Elijah from Searsport visiting them last week. They took in the fireworks in Lewiston, went swimming, and to movies among many other fun things. They returned home in time for Maria's mother Charlotte Thompson's birthday.

On the front of last week's Bethel Citizen was a picture of my great-great niece Emma Davis (I'm not really that old). What a doll! I cut it out and have it on the front of my refrigerator where I can enjoy it for a while. Emma is the daughter of Vernon and Tammy Davis of Bethel.

I visited my brother Vernon Poland at Ledgeview Nursing Home one night this week. His wife Tommy was there along with some of his family, Dennis and Debbie Poland and Sandra Monzo. He is feeling a little better at this writing.

Those celebrating birthdays recently, or soon upcoming are: Leon Poland, Jr., Joe Pete Appleby, Terry Merrill, Judy Green, Wayne Lawrence and Vince Stevens, along with myself. Hope they have or have had a happy one and have many more.

Diana Poland has completed her technical training in Biloxi, Miss. Diana is in the U.S. Air Force and will be stationed in New Mexico for a while. Diana is the daughter of Todd and Linda Poland.

Amy Merrill, daughter of Terry and Phil Merrill, is working in Mobile, Ala., this summer in a jewelry store. She is staying with JoAnna Poland who lives and works as a physical therapist in Mobile.

Larry Billings, curator, Woodstock Historical Society reports that on Aug. 6 the society will hold History Day. There will be a flea market, refreshments for sale, and demonstrations. President Annela Burnham is organizing the event. Rain date will be Aug. 7, 1 to 4 p.m. The annual picnic in August will be at the home of Ruth Cox. The society reveals many things about Maine and New England. You can always learn there.

I noticed in the paper that my grandson Doug Wing made the honor roll in the eighth grade at Oxford Hills this past grading session, along with Jennie Record. Keep up the good work next fall.

In the Lewiston Sun on Tuesday of this week, I saw a picture of the I.W. Andrews Casket Shop that is being torn down and is being reconstructed in Biddeford Pool. My father, Leon Poland, worked in this building, covering and lining caskets, for about 40 years. Many times I would climb the short set of stairs leading to his work area and visit for a while. I took a ride down by later in the day on Tuesday so I could see for myself. I am glad to see the building is being reconstructed as it has been for more than a century.

Quote of the Week: "I've learned that the price tag on a new garment is more securely attached than the buttons."

Irving Fogwell of Florida and Maine arrived Friday at his home on Backstreet for the summer.

Songo Pond

By ALICE KIMBALL

A lovely party was held Sunday afternoon at the Songo cottage of Danny and Paula Wheeler, co-hosted by Wendy Wheeler Rice. The affair was in celebration of the 90th birthday of their grandmother, Mrs. Celia Kimball Gorman.

Bouquets of wildflowers decorated the outside tables where traditional refreshments were served, including finger foods, punch and coffee.

Over 100 family, relatives and friends signed the guest book. Many happy memories will be revived from the basket full of cards. An original pair of placemats decorated by childhood snapshots was presented by a grand-niece, Mrs. Donna Folsom. A beautiful bouquet of red roses was also given the guest of honor.

The camp was built by Celia's husband, Charles Gorman in 1937 -- a place where they had spent over 50 happy seasons.

Birthday cake and ice cream were later enjoyed at a family supper.

Our sincere sympathy to the families of Joan Coolidge, Evelyn Merrill and Phil Chadbourn.

The annual meeting of the Songo Cemetery Association will be held Sunday evening, July 24, at the Kimball-Salway home.

I returned home Sunday after spending two weeks with the Adams family at their camp on Howard Pond.

We finally have a full water supply after two weeks of getting by on enough for bare necessities, which did not include showers and laundry.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Poisson have come to their cottage from Titusville, Fla., for two weeks. Their son Paul from Nashua, N.H., is spending this week with them.

Bernie and Debbie Michaud from York were callers here Sunday afternoon.

Kaitly Gatchell of Portland is spending several days this weekend here with her grandparents while her parents are on a camping trip to Baxter State Park.

Holiday weekend guests at the Wentzell cottage were grandchildren Debbie and Raymond Eichel from Worcester, Mass. Joining them for a cookout Sunday were Ethel Stewart and Dotty Eichel from Boston and Elaine and Harold Eichel from Goshen, N.H.

Mrs. Millie Wentzell spent last week in Sebago visiting her son Erland and Margie Wentzell. At the same time, Mary Eichel made a trip to Grapevine, Texas, to visit her son Wayne and family. While there she watched her nine-year-old granddaughter Brittany perform in her first figure skating competition.

Callers here this week were Mrs. Dottie Adams of Hanover, Sarah Bean and friend Mike of Otisfield, and Cecile Poisson.

Phyllis and Bill Bancroft attended the Lapham reunion in Locke Mills on Saturday.

Character is developed by two small words -- yes and no.

East Stoneham

By ELEANOR NELSON

Dwight and Mary Grover have been staying at their camp in Waterford this past week.

Eric Nelson from South Paris is staying at Albert and Eleanor Nelson's little camp at Lake Keewaydin this summer.

Jennifer Woodbury and Richard Ingenito from Tom's River, N.J., were united in marriage at the Presbyterian Church there on July 9. Liz Tinder was one of the wedding party. We wish them much happiness in their future life together. There were guests from California, Arizona, Michigan, Indiana and Maine. Jennifer is the daughter of John and Bette Woodbury.

Bob Millett and Arthur Farrer from South Paris have been building a chimney at Horse Shoe Pond for the Fox Bros.

Jennifer Barnard had a pizza party and cake and ice cream for birthday here at her grandparents' home. Jenna is nine years old and her cousins helped her to celebrate. They enjoyed several games outdoors and thankfully it didn't rain until later. This was Saturday, July 9.

Molly Nelson is again taking horseback riding lessons from Dianne Leighton in Albany this summer, and last weekend they went in a horse show in Andover.

Troy Nelson is working at the East

Stoneham Country Store here in Stoneham. He has just got himself his first car.

Remember there will be a bake sale at the church vestry on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Young Dennis Farnsworth has been working for Helen and Harold Strout, also for Grace Nelson.

Dennis and Cory Jones and Johnny Khakonen have been working for Frances Grant to get her hay in for her cows for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Brown and Eunice Grover called on Gladys Kilgore one day last week.

Greenwood City

By COLISTA MORGAN

It's a gray day as I write this. There have been a number of them this past week. Now the clouds cover the sky. Over in the west I can see the mist that is rising slowly in scattered columns out of the dark green woods along the pond. Some might call it depressing, but I have many things to do and to be thankful for, so I'll be happy with what I have.

I have already been out to look and to listen. The lawn was wet and for the first time this summer I noticed the spider-web houses on the grass. A mother robin was scolding and a remote, sad call came to me from a mourning dove near by. Near the flowers I could hear a bumblebee humming in search of breakfast. All the roadsides were white with daisies, and my roses were in full bloom. How can one be depressed?

To me, Greenwood City is a song that lives in my heart. I came here in 1926, so I have spent many years here and have learned much about the people and I've enjoyed life.

I have learned that a sudden hush before a summer's storm is somewhat like the silence before the curtain lifts in a great orchestra...soft notes of a summer breeze, liquid notes of many birds, the crash of a falling tree, a lonely night call of the whip-poor-will and the crack of pond ice, as it reverberates from shore to shore.

There are peace, happiness, friendship and love and the firm clasp of a neighbor's hand.

There are three places in Greenwood which hold memories for me; the place where I was born and grew up as a child among four brothers and four sisters; my school years and the farm life with my husband Clyde. This farm home in which we lived from 1930-1960 was then owned by Robert E. Morgan, Clyde's father, who moved there in 1889.

Shortly after, there was a fire and the house burned. We have heard that neighbors hitched a team of horses to the end of the house on fire and pulled it away so that the shed and barn were saved. They lived there until the ell and present dwelling was built.

In 1904 Robert married Olive Swan to whom he had been engaged three years, while the main house was being built and also the new end to the barn.

Robert's father and mother then lived in the upstairs rent until Austin Morgan's death in 1918.

Since then many family relatives have lived there in that rent. Many changes have been made to the buildings since then.

Now the place is owned by Fay Morgan Holt and her husband Leonas Holt, a veteran, retired carpenter, farmer, father, grandfather. Three children were born to them, Robert, Ann and David. They were brought up in the years that we were living there.

There is so much history connected with this farm that I never tire of writing about it.

Nestled in a forest valley/Greenwood City looks afar/How lovely against the sunset/The mighty mountains are./An expanse of blue horizons/Winds that blow and cease/Skies with clouds or starlight/A valley of restful peace./Here within this valley/Have sturdy souls been born/Our town's historic pages/Their names and deeds adorn/Their memories and achievements/Greenwood shall keep aglow/Through spring, summer, autumn/Or when winter whirls its snow.

It has been miserable hay weather, so at the farm not much has been done in the fields.

Several of Rena Curtis' family went with their campers to Freeport where they stayed for the weekend. Leonas Holt's sister, Edith Gardner and husband Howard visited recently at the farm. They have had many neighbor visitors, also.

The raccoons are regular night callers at my house. If I don't bring my bird feeders in, they are taken down. One night the base of my humming bird feeder was removed. How? I don't know, for it was hanging from a rope between a tree and my house. So, now I take that inside each night. I feed the raccoons but they never have enough.

David and daughter Mary attended a car show in Farmington on Sunday, then came to the farm late afternoon. Sally spent the day at a club meeting and a picnic.

Gilead

By LOUISE LORING

A tale from "Arabian Nights" tells us of "star studded skies," and this is what we have carpeted overhead on these last few weeks of July. Talk about the "Star Spangled Banner" -- it flies over star spangled skies. The moon peers down like a little crescent of silver, and the lacy green trees (by day) turn into eerie black monsters at night -- letting patches of light filter through upon the lawn. All about the lightening bugs turn their little lanterns off and on, as if searching for their great Creator who put them there. Far off in the distance, a whip-poor-will calls incessantly, and the sleepy sounds of the mourning dove echo throughout the valley. The earth has cooled, dew forms upon the garden leaves, and if you look closely upon the lawn, you can see little silken tents, spun by some unknown creature, held up by tiny blades of grass.

Summer evenings -- so cool -- so beautiful with so much to enjoy. Look and listen -- you will be glad you're around this old planet to enjoy these things. Until next week, then, Peace and God Bless. Linda Smith and Wayne Taylor, and Linda's two children Jeremy and Alicia, also Evonne Sessions (Linda's granddaughter) have returned home after an enjoyable vacation trip to Scipio, Ind. On the way out they stopped at Aurora, Ohio, to visit Sea World. Upon arrived and after a bit of rest they traveled to Louisville, Ky., to visit a well-known zoo there. Another noteworthy factor of the trip included a visit to Nashville, Ind., where all the women embarked upon a shopping spree. Nashville is about the size of Gilead, Linda tells me, but its long Main Street consists of nothing but shops, and one has to park their car and walk, no vehicles of any kind are allowed.

Linsley Chapman took care of Linda's kitty while they were gone. Some people from here have been strawberrying at the Goss Berry Farms in Mechanic Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Buckley (nee Tammy Coriveau-Kottahaus) and Tammy's two children, Amy and Amanda, were guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Coriveau recently.

Little Benjamin Chapman of Ellsworth, the grandson of Hugh and Linsley Chapman, has been a welcome and delightful guest of his grandparents. Little Benji was a bit whimpish the first night, but changed his mind when "Granpie" read him stories. Uncle Timmy purchased a wading pool which Benji enjoyed to the utmost, and the visit ended with a trip to Storyland. It's hard to say who had the most fun -- Benji, or Grandpa and Grammie!

No word as yet when the Freedom Square Apartments will be ready for occupancy, but work is continuing at a rapid rate.

My daughter Sandra Dean of Norway surprised me with a lovely visit on July 12. What a nice surprise!

Until next week, then -- Keep the Faith.

No. Woodstock

By SHANE BILLINGS

Summer days are passing quickly. Swimming, tanning, walking in the woods, and all the other activities you do should be pursued vigorously in the coming weeks, because before you know it autumn will be here. Although July is one of the best months of the year for many people, I have always preferred August. It never seems too hot in August, and it's as though we are in the middle of a cycle; summer is not yet over, and autumn has not yet begun, but we can feel them both around us. In August, life is everywhere.

There hasn't been a lot happening in North Woodstock this week. The Silver family went camping in Rangeley; they had a nice time, but one night they were caught in a rainstorm!

Sue Silver took Joelle, Errol, Bridget Billings, and Kara Jakes swimming at Christopher Lake on Wednesday.

I received a visit from my friend Kim Brown and her boyfriend last week. It was the first time I had seen Kim this summer.

Emma Billings received a visit from her friend Phyllis Lowe on Wednesday.

That's it from North Woodstock this week.

Cathedral Pines in Stratton/Eustis was the vacation spot last week for Vance and Connie Bacon, Audrey Hadley, Carmen Hadley, Eldith Lang and Stan and Maxine Cram. They surely picked a good week weather-wise.

Bill and Ginny Aridas, Holbrook, N.Y., have been spending the week with her parents, Vernon and Miriam Inman, Vicky Sanborn, Brant and Caroline from North Conway have also been here for most of the week. Charles Sanborn spent Wednesday night and Thursday.

Randal, Wendy and Becky Chase and De De Chase were on vacation recently at St. George, New Brunswick.

High Street

West Paris

By RUSSELL YATES

Howdy, folks. This is a beautiful, sunny Monday morning here on High Street.

It was also sunny a week ago this morning, and Peggy and I made the most of it. We went to Chipman Farms in Poland, where we picked five flats of strawberries. Yes, we finally managed to get onto our feet after picking the berries and struggled to get them to the car, but finally made it.

After getting home, much of our day was spent taking care of them. Peggy is a good hiller and I'm a good chopper, so we both worked on them. I chopped and put strawberries into 48 pint containers for the freezer. Peggy made three batches of strawberry jam from more berries that I had chopped. With good luck, we got them taken care of in time so that we attended Franklin Grange in the evening. The crowd was small, but we had a good time.

Tuesday, Peggy went to LaVerdiere's to do her card work. One thing that I accomplished here was putting metal hardware cloth around the large sand box that I have on the front end of the mobile home. Of course, there is salt in the sand and hedgehogs would devour the sand box if I'd let them.

I've also had trouble with ants getting after some potato plants, so we prepared some ant traps and put them in the potato patch.

I did some foliar feeding in the garden Wednesday forenoon, and in the afternoon we went to Auburn. Peggy had errands at Wholesale Depot, and then we went to visit sister Viva at the Odd Fellows Home. We were pleased to find her a bit better than when we visited her last week.

After visiting Viva we went to the home of the Bernard Whites, but found them gone so we continued on our way home. When we got back to South Paris, Peggy stopped at Marie's Beauty Shop and had her hair trimmed and set.

The Whites came up Thursday forenoon and Myrna visited with her mother while Whitey mowed the lawns. They usually stay for lunch, but Peggy and I had to leave at 11 a.m. to go to the Franklin Grange Hall in Bryant Pond where we helped serve the Senior Citizen dinner. The attendance at the dinner was good, so it was a worthwhile venture. Franklin Grange usually serves them dinners twice during the year.

Thursday evening, we attended West Paris Grange. There was a better turnout than usual, and I expect that some of them had come to listen to the speaker. The Grange lecturer, Bertha Benoit had arranged to have a speaker from the Social Security office present to talk about social security and to answer any questions that anyone might wish to ask. He was well prepared for questions.

It turned very hot and humid on Friday. Peggy was doing her card work and I tackled the job of tearing my old cold frame apart and hauling it off. The lumber in it was getting rotten and I decided that it had run its course.

New parts arrived to repair my trimmer/mower, and I installed them in the p.m.

Peggy went down street Saturday morning to have some work done on her car. Later in the forenoon, Wynona and Michael Woolf, with daughters Courtney and Karyann called on us. Wynona is Viva's daughter and they came to check on some items here that belonged to her mother. It had been quite a while since we had seen them and were glad that they called on us.

Myrtle and Lewis Bisbee called on us last evening. Grange degree days are planned for Dec. 23, and more help was needed for the 3rd and 4th degrees. Peggy and I will both lend a helping hand.

The Lovejoy family had a get-together at their camp on North Pond yesterday.

There will be a dance at the Locke Mills Town Hall on July 23 with the Richard Felt Orchestra furnishing the music.

NOTES FROM

Adult Education

The Adult Education program in the Telstar Region recently received notification of the award of two federal Adult Basic Education grants through the Maine Department of Education for adult education service in the SAD44 area. Adult Education director Cathy Newell announced that the grants total $9,144.

A grant in the amount of $6,152 represents the renewal of a multi-year grant for basic education services for adults. The renewal was made on the basis of the successful operation of the program, serving 81 adults with basic academic skills instruction in 1993-94.

The second grant is in the amount of $2,992 and was awarded in a competitive process from the Adult Education Act, Public Law 100-297, Section 353, Special Demonstration Projects. The grant will provide funding for a special project on the Integration of Oral Communication Skills into the Adult Basic Education program. This grant competition was highly competitive with many adult education providers submitting proposals. The SAD44 Adult Education proposal received a score of 95.5 on a scale ranging from 46.5 to 95.6. The project will be undertaken by Jeanette Baldrige and Lee Dolleman, instructors at the Adult Learning Center, and will consist of the development of curriculum, piloting the curriculum with learning center students, and the development of teacher materials suitable for replication in other programs.

The Adult Learning Center will begin fall term classes on Aug. 31.

During July and early August, the center is operating on a reduced schedule. Karen Bean is at the center on Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 9 to noon, and on Wednesday evening from 5:30 to 8:30. She works on an individual basis with adults needing brush-up work in reading, writing or math, as well as for GED preparation and computer-based keyboarding instruction. To register for the Adult Learning Center, call the Adult Education office at 824-2780.

WING HONORED AT NORWICH UNIVERSITY

Norwich University Cadet Troy E. Wing of Bryant Pond received the American Legion ROTC Military and Scholarship Excellence Award at the university's spring awards ceremony. The award is presented to outstanding cadets who have demonstrated excellence in academics and leadership.

He was also promoted to the rank of Cadet Staff Sergeant in the Corps of Cadets for the 1994-95 academic year. Wing is a sophomore mechanical engineering major at Norwich.

NOTES FROM

Telstar Guidance

Twenty area youngsters participated in the first "Safe Hangout" activity on Tuesday, July 12. A movie trip to Auburn provided enjoyment, entertainment and laughs for all. The 20 adolescents and their five chaperones had the opportunity to see "The Lion King," "Baby's Day Out," or "The Little Big League." It was encouraging to have the question, "What are we going to do next week?" asked as those involved were returned to Telstar.

Many other plans are being made for the 200 youngsters who showed an interest in taking part in these chemically free activities. A group of rock climbers headed out for rough footing last weekend and water activities, including canoeing are in the works for the end of July.

Community members are urged to get involved with the "Safe Hangout" programs. If you are interested in becoming active in the summer programs contact Kathy Cole of the Regional Partnership at 836-3620. Agricultural activities, hiking and rock climbing, camping, water activities and canoeing, movie trips and aviation are just a few of the areas being looked at for the summer programs.

RYAN BORDEN SOLOS

Ryan J. Borden, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Author Borden of Mexico completed the first stage towards his FAA pilot's certification. Under the supervision of his instructor he flew solo for the first time out at the Bethel Col. Dyke Field last Friday. His training will continue and he plans to be licensed by the end of summer.

New Olde Home Days events in Andover

By BARBARA ADAMS

There will be four, and possibly five, new events for Andover's Olde Home Days this year on Aug. 5, 6, and 7. The theme for the three-day affair is "Early Occupations in Andover."

The busy Olde Home Days committee has added a scavenger hunt for those entering grades seven through 12 in the fall; four musical events on the common Sunday afternoon; Karaoke at the band stand Saturday afternoon; and a lecture on "Unidentified Flying Objects" at 4 p.m. Saturday at the Town Hall.

The committee voted to have a carnival, run by Funtime Festivals of Old Orchard Beach, be part of the festivities behind the Andover School, providing two contingencies are met. If the committee comes to an agreement with the carnival owners, Friday afternoon and evening, and Saturday all day children will enjoy a giant slide, ferris wheel, boat and fire engine rides, a merry-go-round, two moon bouncers and a kiddie whip, among other things. There will also be food booths selling cotton candy, candied apples, popcorn and fried dough.

The committee is actively seeking donations of door prizes, and anyone interested may contact either Phyllis Spaulding or Betsey White at the Andover Town Office.

A painting by Judy Hall of Roxbury will be raffled off. Tickets are $1 each and available at local stores. Olde Home Days buttons are also available at the stores and the Town Office at $1 each. Winners must be present, or winning buttons must be presented by someone else attending the drawings in order to receive a prize.

Advance tickets will be on sale for Friday night's dinner of "logging camp cooking" at the Town Hall at 6 p.m., followed by the Ed Morris Hypnotic Show. At 8 p.m. there will be music on the common by Marshall Meisner's band. Bring your own chairs.

From 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday, the Congregational Church will have crafts, a white elephant sale, food, and lunch served at noon. From 9 a.m. to noon there will be a scavenger hunt for those entering grades seven to 12 in the fall. Items lists and rules for the hunt will be distributed at the bandstand. This is not a race, the committee noted, and cash prizes will be awarded.

At 9:30 a.m. there will be a bike and doll carriage parade which will assemble at Andover Automotive. The parade on Main Street begins at 10 a.m. From 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. there will be an Art Show downstairs in the Town Hall. There is no age minimum for entrants.

At 11 a.m. the Chicken Barbecue begins at the Fire Station, and at 11:30 a.m. children's games will be held at the Morse lawn. Weather permitting, there will be sky divers at the Little League field at noon. From noon to 2 p.m. there will be an Antique and Classic Auto Show at Akers' Ski Field. A fly casting contest will take place on the Morse lawn at 12:30 p.m., and at the same time Charlie Who's Mime Show will begin at the car show in back of the fire station.

At 12:30 p.m. there will also be the first drawing of button prizes at the bandstand. From 1 to 4:30 p.m. there will be an open house at the library, which will include a wedding gown display. The Firemen's muster begins at 1 p.m. at the Little League field, and at 1:30 p.m. there will be horseshoe pitching at the south side of the fire station. Also at 1:30 p.m. the Cow Chip Flip will be held in the back of the Little League field.

The final drawing for button prizes will be held at the bandstand at 2:30 p.m., the same time there will be arm wrestling on the church steps. Prizes for the scavenger hunt will be awarded at the bandstand at 2:45 p.m. Karaoke with Tony Belkiss will be held at the bandstand at 3:30 p.m., followed by a UFO lecture at the Town Hall at 4 p.m.

All day Saturday on the common there also will be a flea market, crafts, food, games, a dunk tank, pony rides, and free horse and wagon rides.

On Sunday, beginning at 9 a.m., the Ellis River Riders will hold a horse show at their ring in South Andover. This is an all-day show and food will be on sale. From 1 to 5 p.m. there will be entertainment Sunday afternoon on the common, featuring the Scoggin Cloggers at 1 p.m.; Blue Grass Music at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m., and the County Chords barbershop quartet at 3 p.m. Please bring a chair to these events.

Lakes Association meeting

"A lake is the product of its watershed and the people who care for it" — this is the motto of the China Lakes Association and will be the focus of this year's annual meeting of the Community Lakes Association of Woodstock and Greenwood.

The meeting will be held from 8:45 to 11 a.m. on Saturday, July 23, at the Maine Conservation School in Bryant Pond.

Following a welcome coffee and a brief business meeting, Jim Chandler will describe how a watershed survey may be organized. He recently completed a watershed grant project for the Lake Christopher watershed area. Solutions to erosion problems will be presented.

People who are aware of erosion problems, either on their property or anywhere in the watershed area of their pond are encouraged to attend and with the help of others develop a plan to correct the problem.

All citizens who enjoy swimming, fishing, boating, wildlife and the scenic beauty of area lakes and ponds are encouraged to take an active part in this effort to control erosion.

Tips from the

Bethel Conservation Commission

Disposal of old paint: Americans use three million gallons of paint every day, which equals over a billion gallons of paint a year. The average household has an estimated four gallons of paint stored in the basement or garage. Resins, solvents, pigments and additives are all hazardous components of paints that can pose serious threats to the human health and the natural environment. Solvent-based paints (also called alkyd or oil-based) contain volatile hydrocarbons that are ignitable and present particular hazards. Latex or water-based paints are not quite as hazardous but still contain toxic substances that could cause harm if not handled properly.

Disposal of waste paint is best done through a household hazardous waste collection program. Since this service is costly and not widely available, alternatives to disposal are necessary. Reduction, reuse and recycling are effective strategies for handling old paint.

Two particularly hazardous substances, lead and mercury, are no longer used in paint. They still represent a problem in old paint that has been stored for years in basements or garages. Keep these paints tightly sealed and save them for disposal at a hazardous waste collection site.

The best solution to disposal is to plan your quantities carefully to avoid excessive leftovers. Water-based paints are less hazardous and should be used instead of oil based paints whenever possible. Use up all the paint by applying a second coat or using it for touch up. Use leftover paint on other projects (paint stays in good condition for up to ten years). You can mix several colors to create a beige or gray paint that can be used as a primer. Finally you can give leftover paint to friends and neighbors or donate it to community groups such as theater groups, scouts, or affordable housing projects.

Paint can contaminate ground water and should not be dumped on the ground, down sewers, drains, or toilets. Paint should not be disposed of in household trash, as the trash will eventually be compacted releasing unsolidified paint from the can. This could cause problems in disposal trucks as well as cause ground water contamination when dumped in a landfill. Small quantities of latex paint can be allowed to dry out by leaving the can open in a place safe from children and pets. Stirring occasionally will speed the drying process.

Recycle paint cans along with other steel or tin cans. Cans should be empty, although a thin skin of dry latex paint on the bottom and sides of the can will not hinder the recycling process.

Golf tip of the week --

Be committed, but put your game in perspective. There are more important things in life. Putting it in perspective will help you as a player to realize you don't have to win, but only do your best. Enjoy what you are doing. If it isn't rewarding or enjoyable then reevaluate your program and make it so.

The golf tip of the week is provided by the staff of the Bethel Inn and Country Club.

KEN COLE SPEAKS TO G.O.P.

Ken Cole, chairman of the Maine Republican party, was the featured speaker at the July monthly meeting of the Oxford County Republican Committee hosted by the Otisfield Town Republican Committee at the Community Center.

Chairman Cole praised Oxford County Republicans for their outstanding work in electing Republicans and for their strong financial support for the 1994 state convention. He outlined the party's strategy for victory in 1994, emphasizing close attention to grass roots efforts, which should result in electoral success for the party from top to bottom of the Republican ticket, he predicted.

Cole invited all Republicans to tour the party's new headquarters in Hallowell. He introduced Sen. Pam Cahill, Senate Republican leader, who discussed her efforts to win the State Senate.

During the business portion of the meeting, plans for booths at fairs were outlined. The Oxford/Androscoggin joint county picnic to be held on Sept. 10 at Oxford was also discussed. Because of the picnic, it was voted not to have a September monthly meeting of the county. It was announced that the next meeting will be in Fryeburg at the fair-ground, but because of scheduling problems, will not be on the second Tuesday, but on Wednesday, Aug. 24. Those attending are requested to bring desserts and salads. The Fryeburg Republican Town Committee will furnish main dishes.

Speaker for this meeting will be Kathy Watson, vice chair of the Republican State Committee. The Executive Committee was authorized to investigate securing a county headquarters for the fall.

GAME FARM PROGRAMS

A summer series of wildlife programs targeted for the general public began on July 10 at the Gray Game Farm and Visitors Center, located on Route 26 in Gray. Programs on each consecutive Sunday in July and August will be offered twice each day, rain or shine, at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., and will be free to those who have already paid their regular admission fee.

July 17 saw "Smokey the Bear" and a Maine Forest Service Ranger offering a program about forest fires in Maine. What are the leading causes of forest fires each year? How do forest rangers fight fires? What can you do to prevent forest fires? In addition, it was Smokey's 50th birthday!

On Sunday, July 24, Department of Fisheries and Wildlife natural science educator Lisa Kane will present a program called "Skins and Skulls, Feathers and Nests. What's Legal and What's Not?" You might have found a pretty blue jay feather, or an old bird's nest, or a dropped antler from a deer, or a raccoon skull in the woods. Is it legal or illegal to keep these treasures? Why is something like a feather illegal for you to possess? Find out the answers to these and other questions about the wildlife artifacts we find while out wandering the outdoors.

And July 31, a much-asked-for program will be provided -- a "Walking Tour of the Game Farm," presented by volunteers from the Friends of the Game Farm organization. Learn more about the individual animals and birds, why they reside at the farm in captivity, their natural history in the wild, and some of the wildlife management programs the Department of Fish and Wildlife administers in Maine.

August programs will include a presentation on mammal and bird skulls, called "What Kind of 'Vore' Are You?" a look at the adjacent fish hatchery, a wildlife rehabilitation presentation by the Center for Wildlife, and at the end of the month, bird dog and agility dog demonstrations.

For more information about any of these programs, please call Augusta Fish and Wildlife headquarters at 287-2871.

ROADS SCHOLAR--Bethel road foreman Bob Pilgrim receives his 'Roads Scholar' certificate from Peter Coughlan, director of the Maine Local Roads Center.

Pilgrim is 'Roads Scholar'

Bethel road foreman Bob Pilgrim has been awarded "Roads Scholar" recognition by the Maine Local Roads Center, a cooperative effort of the Maine Department of Transportation, the University of Maine and the Federal Highway Administration.

The award was one of only two presented this year. The second recipient was Old Town public works director John Ellis. The awards were presented at last month's third Annual Highway Congress at the Skowhegan Fairgrounds.

"We started the Maine Roads Scholar Program as a way of recognizing municipal officials who have achieved a solid foundation in local road technical and management skills through attendance at Local Roads Center workshops," said center director Peter Coughlan. "They also acquire skills which can help their towns save tax dollars through more cost effective techniques and products."

To qualify as a Maine Road Scholar, participants must attend 10 days of training in Local Roads Center workshops. Seven of the 10 are mandatory, including topics such as roadway fundamentals, paving basics, snow and ice control, road surface management, tort liability, drainage, and work zone safety. The remaining three days can be drawn from attendance at any of several other workshops offered by the center. "The required courses build a foundation of knowledge and the electives allow participants to tailor their program to meet individual needs," Coughlan said.

Each "Maine Roads Scholar" receives a special plaque, public recognition, and a coffee mug recognizing their accomplishment.

The Local Roads Center has been providing technical assistance to all levels of government since 1986. Coughlan said, "Over 70 percent of Maine's 492 municipalities have utilized one or more of our services since the center opened. ... That suggests to us that we must be meeting real needs for better, more efficient, more effective ways to do things in the local public works arena."

In addition to a year-round schedule of workshops offered at various locations throughout the state, the center provides "hands-on" training, a quarterly Newsletter, free publications, a videotape lending library, and over-the-phone assistance to local public works officials.

Pilgrim and Ellis join previous Roads Scholar recipients Wallace Boyd of Mars Hill, Herbert Whittier of Monmouth, Ken Vining of Wilton, and Roger Taschereau of Arundel.

BETHEL SENIOR CITIZENS

The Bethel Senior Citizens met Wednesday, July 13, at the Madison in Rumford with 54 in attendance. President Helen Saunders presided and reported for treasurer Sarah Stevens.

Birthdays celebrated were Joyce Bennett, Edwin Brown, Barbara Bryant, Norma Cross, Rose Hutchins, Raymond Saunders, Grace Morrill, Earlon Paine, Eva Perry, Connie Voture, Martha Von Zintle, Virginia Walker, Gary York, and Celia Gorman celebrated her 90th at a open house at Songo Pond, July 9.

Betty and Ernest Perkins are recovering from an automobile accident, and Martha Von Zintle is at Ledgeview. Report of the shut-ins showed there were 10 calls to nursing homes, five to hospitals and 25 phone calls to homes. Haywood Sawyer won the raffle and Helena Bartlett the door prize.

It was voted to purchase an Emergency Response Unit for use in the SAD #44 area under the supervision of Lindley Wieden. He explained temporary plans for two future trips. Aug. 17 a trip to the coast will travel from Bethel to Jay to Augusta to Belfast. Dinner at the Weatherline, stop at the Maine-Massachusetts House gift shop, then on to the Head of the Bay in Camden and the Conway Homestead (fee $1.50). The Foliage Trip, Oct. 5, will be Gorham, Jefferson, Mt. Washington House, probably back through Gorham and Errol.

A moment of silence was held in

Task Force notes:

Bethel Area Task Force will meet next on Sunday, July 24, at 7 p.m. at the NTL Conference Center. Among issues to be discussed will be Retirement Community, NTL relations, Just Imagine Coffeehouse updates, and Economic Development.

At the June meeting, Patricia Williams and Maria Termini reported on the just ended 1993-1994 season of the Just Imagine Coffeehouse. During this season, the smoke-free, alcohol-free center was opened monthly on the first Saturday evening, from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Congregational Church dining room. The performers were very favorably received, but by small audiences. The committee is studying possibilities of different scheduling, and of changes in the program formats to attract greater attendance. Volunteers to assist with set-up and take-down will be welcomed.

The group was reminded that the Bethel Bicentennial 1996 committee is forming, and interested persons should contact Dr. Stanley Howe at the Bethel Historical Society. The same summer of 1996 will see the NTL observing its 50th summer season in Bethel, with its first season here having been in 1947, following its origin in Connecticut the previous year.

The Retirement Community committee is continuing, and is actively seeking to locate persons in the area who have a direct interest in retirement planning. They should contact a committee member, The Rev. Gwyneth Bohr, 824-2913, and the Rev. Brendon Bass, 824-2653, of the Task Force are on that committee.

remembrance of Joan Coolidge. Rudy Royer offered the blessing before dinner.

Lindley Wieden presented a well received program of "Show and Tell" with treasured family antiques. Among the items were a Bible printed in Swedish, sleigh bells, Tinka Toys, children's games and a typewriter and telephone.

The next meeting will be Aug. 10 at the Powell Campground in Hanover. Bring an item for auction in a paper bag and a dish to share. Hot dogs and hamburgers will be furnished. Bring a chair too.

JOINT WORSHIP SERVICE

The Bethel United Methodist Church and the West Parish Congregational Church will worship together this Sunday, July 24, at the Congregational Church at 9:30. The Rev. Henry Nickerson will preach.

On Aug. 21 the two congregations will join together for worship again, this time at the Methodist Church.

Loon plates are selling well

A large number of Maine car owners are showing their support for Maine's wildlife, while at the same time adding a pleasing addition to their motor vehicles by acquiring the new Maine Conservation License Plate, according to Commissioner of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife "Bucky" Owen. The new license plate has been available since April 1, and nearly 18,000 plates were sold during the first two months of the program.

Owen said he is extremely pleased with the number of vehicles being registered with the new plate. "It demonstrates the interest Maine people have in the state's wildlife resources," he said. He further added that "the Department does not receive any tax dollars from the state's General Fund and operates solely on revenues it derives from the sale of fishing and hunting licenses, and other sources. Since these funds are not adequate to support a variety of needed wildlife conservation initiatives, new sources of funding such as the Conservation License Plate are extremely important to the Department."

Owen said he is concerned over recent reports that funds derived from the new license plate are being siphoned off by the legislature for other purposes. He indicated that this is completely false, and that the law establishing the Conservation License Plate clearly requires that 40 percent of the funds generated be deposited in the department's Endangered and Nongame Wildlife Fund and the Secretary of State has been reimbursed for costs of producing and issuing the plate.

These administrative costs were estimated to be $10 a plate for the first two years of the program, and will be adjusted once cost data are available. The monies going to Inland Fisheries and Wildlife are dedicated by law to be used for the management of nongame wildlife.

The department has estimated that up to 80,000 vehicles would be registered with the new plate and generate over $300,000 annually for endangered and nongame conservation programs. The remaining 60 percent of the funds are to be deposited in the State Parks Fund to be used for improvements, maintenance, repairs, and operation of existing state parks and historic sites.

Owen said he hopes that the misleading information that has been reported will not dampen the public's interest in acquiring the new plate.

From the Bethel Area

Health Center

Stephanie Thurber, a health medical student at the University of New England, will be spending six weeks beginning July 18 at the Bethel Area Health Center.

Thurber was selected as one of more than 300 students chosen each year to participate in a national Health Promotion/Disease Prevention Project sponsored by the National Health Service Corps. The project places health professional students from across the United States in community-based systems of care.

While working at the Bethel Area Health Center, Thurber will assist the medical center staff with community health education and disease prevention programs. In particular she will be assisting in setting up an Immunization Recall System at the health center to help assure that all the community's children are appropriately immunized.

The Health Promotion/Disease Prevention Project that is sponsoring Thurber has received federal funding from the National Health Service Corps for 10 years. The Health Promotion/Disease Prevention Project serves as an essential step in educating health professional students about public and community health problems and encourages these students to consider practicing in communities that need more primary care providers.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETING

IN

PROPOSED RELOCATION & RECONSTRUCTION OF CROSS STREET

WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1994 AT 7:00 P.M.

TELSTAR HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

The Maine Department of Transportation is planning to participate in a cooperative project proposed by the Town of Bethel to relocate and reconstruct Cross Street, so-called, as a connector road between State Route 26 and U.S. Route 2 in Bethel. A portion of the cost to construct the project will be provided by the Maine Department of Transportation using federal aid highway funds under its Maine Federal Aid Project No. STP-5743(00)/PIN 5743.00. Additional federal aid funding is also being considered for the construction of a new railroad station and siding adjacent to the existing railroad tracks.

Preliminary design as currently proposed for the project will be discussed at a meeting of the Bethel Planning Board on Wednesday evening, July 27, 1994 at 7:00 P.M. in the Telstar High School Auditorium. Representatives of the Town of Bethel, the Maine Department of Transportation and others will be present to discuss the proposed details of the project and to answer questions from all interested parties. Accommodations will be made for persons with disabilities and auxiliary aids will be provided upon request by contacting the Town of Bethel.

The New Locke Mountain Townhouses

Trail Elevation

Slopeside ♦ Quality Construction ♦ Panoramic Views

Ski to your door in the afternoon. Stoke up the fire -- and relax. Watch the sun set over the spectacular Mahosuc mountain range... from the livingroom of your new Locke Mountain Townhouse.

It's more than a slopeside condo--it's a true four-season second home. Superior construction. The utmost in convenience and privacy. You'll enjoy the fully-equipped kitchen... the cathedral ceilings... the large master bedroom... the plush wall-to-wall carpeting...
the tasteful and comfortable design.

Select from two spacious floor plans. In the 1800 square-foot configuration, you'll enjoy three large bedrooms, a loft, a daylight basement and the luxury of three full baths.

In the 1660 square-foot configuration, you'll relax with three full bedrooms and two and a half baths.

Each winter, you'll step out the door and into your skis. In the summer, you can hike, mountain bike, fish, golf and explore the cool green mountains. Locke Mountain Townhouses offer you four-season recreational opportunities. All this comfort, all this convenience is available now... at remarkably attractive prices. Compare-- you won't find better value in slopeside second homes ANY WHERE in snow country.
